(b) A year ago both the Medical Officers appointed on monthly wage basis under C.G.H.S. and the E.S.I.C. were drawing a fixed salary of Rs. 650 per month plus other admissible allowances. Presently the doctors under the CGHS are drawing the fixed salary of Rs. 2000 plus admissible allowances while the doctors appointed under E.S.I.C. are drawing a fixed salary of Rs. 2200 plus admissible allowances.

(c) and (d) The disparity has arisen because the Central Admn. Tribunal while interpreting the provisions relating to recruitment in the Employees State Insurance Act has held that intermittent breaks in service are unwarranted and no discrimination can be made in the pay and allowances merely on the ground that some Insurance Medical Officers are temporary or adhoc or officiating and are paid a fixed salary of Rs. 2000 plus admissible allowances while other appointed on regular basis are paid a fixed salary of Rs. 2200 plus admissible allowances.
